

Information Sheet

Get involved in the planning and running of activities and services in an organisation.

Organisations can create opportunities for members to be involved in the everyday running of organisations.

Members might be invited to join a committee or steering group in which they can contribute to long-term planning.

You can get involved in promoting your organisation which can attract funding and new members.

You can also get involved in raising money for your organisation through participating in fundraising activities.

Organisations running co-produced and member-led activities can provide great opportunities for members to learn new knowledge and skills and gain confidence and experience.

Our research showed members involved in running organisations often put those skills and experiences to use in other settings.

Organisations can support member involvement by using and creating accessible and inclusive forms of communication.
